

Order Better Plant

By GLENN LOGAN

NEW LENOX -- Faced with an ultimatum from the state water board to improve its sewage treatment plant and system now, the New Lenox village board has been working long hours with financial advisers exploring possible avenues for complying with the state's demands.

The regular meeting of the village board which was Wednesday night of last week was recessed until tonight (Sept. 7) and it is the hope of village authorities they will have a solution to the problem.

The state water board is for all practical purposes the high, low and middle justice on matters pertaining to sewage treatment. It has found the New Lenox plant is now operating to capacity and will not permit additional connections to the system until the situation is remedied.

This means, it was pointed out at the village meeting, that local authorities must act. They were apprised that the state water board can and will force compliance.

Improvement of the plant and treatment was provided for in a $1,200,000 revenue bond package that was also to provide the community with a central water system. Then the bond market went haywire.

The bonds haven't been sold and Morton Lang, of Benjamin and Lang, a Chicago

Boxcars Burning; So Are Residents

By BEV SMUTNAK

CREST HILL -- Crest Hill residents will breathe polluted air and endure soot and smoke caused by massive boxcar burning at least until 1971 when the Industrial Service and Salvage Corporation in Crest Hill ceases open burning.

This was the message several residents received when they came before the city council to protest the burning. Indications are the city will not pursue the matter through an injunction. Reasons cited for this course is the futility of such action and the cost to taxpayers.

The city feels the county should begin pollution control. Attorney John Cirricione pointed out a real solution is not in sight since the state does not take positive action.

Meanwhile, residents are left with the bleak fact that burnings will continue.

In a lengthy letter read by Mayor Frank Berta, from Industrial Service and Salvage, the company outlines a phasing out plan to be completed by Dec. 31, 1971. Corporation counsel explained the local firm's progress in research and development in pollution control and told of its promises to the state pollution board.

Residents aren't ready to buy the promise. They say Industrial Service promised many times to stop night burnings and haven't kept its word.

Owner John Long, 520 Chaney Ave., asked the council if it intends to carry out their nuisance ordinance that prohibits open burning. Attorney Cirricione answered Long's question with another; the validity of the city ordinance itself. Cirricione told of city ordinances being over-ruled all the time.

Mrs. Laurie Brencich, 1919 Oakland Ave., informed the council of late night fires. She told of a recent fire as late as 2:30 a.m. She said the heat and muggy nights make the smoke sometimes so dense, breathing and visibility are impaired. Mrs. Brencich also told of persons seeing the fires burning from I-55 and using her street, Oakland Ave., as a thoroughfare to come watch the fires. There are 52 children in her block. She claims the traffic is a danger to the children who play outdoors

LOCKPORT -- Civic and Commerce officials asked the city council to investigate the legality of the deed for Central Grade School. Bruce Cheadle, C&CA secretary, said his organization will donate $500 to the council for such an investigation. He said the block had been dedicated years ago as a public square to the city.

Interested parties feel the site should become a city park resumed Cheadle. Along with Cheadle were Anton Matesi Jr. and Joseph Cornolo of the C&CA and William Earl Greene, representing the Lockport VFW.

Cheadle noted that School District 91 had recently obtained a deed and that the board was to open bids Sept. 12 for the sale of the property at no less than $225,000.

City Attorney Eugene Korst, also attorney for District 91, asked why no one had challenged the legality in nine years when the school obtained the deed. He continued that this had been pending for 10 years and that a bond issue for a new school was passed in 1967. The board made public that they wished to sell the old building. "Where have you been all these years," asked Korst.

Greene, justifying his reason for being there, said he was "looking out for Lockport" and was "not trying to beat anyone out of anything."

Swen Nelson said the council should not be too hasty but Councilman Frank Meyers said there was no reason to hesitate in accepting the challenge.

Meyers made the motion to this effect, seconded by George Wolfe. Motion passed by a five to three vote with Nelson, John Kinsella and Len Strahanoski voting no. Aye votes

LEMONT -- Four delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention presented their proposed changes to the state constitution at a meeting Sept. 3 in the Lemont Methodist Church.

Mrs. Joan Anderson, Western Springs; Ollie Stone, Tinley Park; William Cairnes, Palos Park and Stewart Loebe, Orland Park spoke to a small group of 28 interested citizens.

Each candidate espoused a personal opinion concerning the rewriting of our 100-year-old state constitution. In the brief ten-minute period allotted, each candidate expressed deep concern in this important subject.

Mrs. Anderson hopes to be elected to the convention in order to institute constitutional safeguards and authority to cope with the water resources problem in Illinois. Her concern centered around the "impossible" situation of the approximately 3,000 local governmental bodies in Illinois. Each hindered or hindering the solution to water waste and pollution in Illinois.

According to Mrs. Anderson our present constitution does not permit the forming of a single agency to levy taxes and control our water resources. It is her contention that the constitution should permit combining of local governmental agencies upon referendum and that this should not in any way hinder taxing powers of the combined bodies.

A constitution written 100 years ago to cope with problems of that day, cannot hope to solve the problems of our present society, noted by Ollie Stone. As an attorney Stone's interest lies in the present constitutional

Dirksen Passing Mourned By All

Everett McKinley Dirksen, a senator with a "style and eloquence matched by no political leader in our time" is dead at age 73.

The minority leader of the Senate and 37-year veteran of the Washington scene died Sunday at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington. Death came from heart and lung failure six days after an operation for chest cancer.

Mr. Dirksen suffered three heart stoppages before he was pronounced dead at 1:51 p.m. Chicago time.

President Nixon, who eulogized Mr. Dirksen with the above quotation, added: "He will be remembered as a giant in the history of Congress and as one who on the great issues always placed the nation first."

The nation's citizens were joined in their mourning by national and state political leaders who added their tributes to the colorful and controversial Republican Senator.

Governor Ogilvie remarked, "... a grand old man ... he will be sorely missed and long remembered."

Charles H. Percy, the junior Senator from Illinois said, Dirksen was "a master of his profession and one of the most beloved figures ever to grace the American political scene."

Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, a Democrat, said, "Sen. Dirksen deserves the heartfelt thanks of every American for the role he played in passage of the historic Civil Rights Law ... the United States has lost one of its most colorful figures ..."

Paul Powell, Illinois secretary of state: "Sen. Dirksen fought all of his life for America's basic principles and we are all indebted to him for their preservation in our time ... He showed us how the Ameri-

Sees End To Class Threat

By JOSEPH SEVICK

SOUTHWEST -- Classes at Joliet Junior College will begin Sept. 22 at a new interim campus despite difficulty meeting state fire codes, according to Elmer Rowley, college president.

Rowley said Monday afternoon, "I think that all problems have been worked out" and emphasized, "We will be starting classes on the 22nd."

He said Becker Brothers Co., manufacturer of the campus buildings, has given assurances all problems with fire codes will be worked out.

Rowley indicated major deficiencies cited by the state fire marshall's office at the 17-building complex are flame resistance ratings of wood paneling and failure to locate some buildings 30 feet or more apart.

The Joliet City Council, Rowley said, was hearing a report Monday afternoon by a council-appointed architect. The architect was appointed to see whether fire codes are being met. Rowley said at the time of Monday's interview he did not know what report the architect would give. He did express confidence that the way is clear in time for the Sept. 22 opening date.

The junior college campus, near Joliet Municipal Airport, is in use for the first

Still Time To Register

SOUTHWEST -- Today is the last day for registration at Joliet Junior College. Classes are now scheduled to start Sept. 22.

Registration is taking place from 7 to 9 p.m. this evening at the skating rink of the Inwood recreation center on West Jefferson St., Route 52, west of Joliet.

Expected for opening day classes are 1,200 freshmen, and 800 returning students. Freshman orientation is Sept. 17, 18 and 19 as scheduled for individual students on a daily basis.

A wide variety of business, technical, engineering and liberal arts courses are offered.

time this fall. Classes had been scheduled to start Sept. 15.

The delay in start of classes for a week will give the faculty time to move in and get settled, Rowley indicated.

He emphasized, "We are still running a much longer (academic) year. I don't assume the delay will be that important."

Caught in the middle are 2,000 daytime students of the two-year school, and nearly 3,000 evening students.

The opening was pushed back because of "questioning" by the state fire marshall's office, Rowley has said. Rowley had pledged the campus would not open until buildings comply with fire codes.

Rowley added that adverse weather conditions have also been a factor in the delayed opening. "We've had the wettest spring and summer in Will County's history," he said. Wet ground made road and drainage development difficult.

The 17 structures will be used for up to five years while permanent buildings are being completed.

"In our opinion, the interim campus will be a tremendous improvement," Rowley said. He explained that the junior college has been housed in downtown Joliet Central High School buildings for 70 years.

The shared facilities and growing enrollment were making the situation difficult, he said. When the college received a class one rating from the state, purchase of 368 acres of land off Route 52 near Joliet Municipal Airport was authorized.

The 17 interim buildings now nearly ready will house almost all college activities,

Turns Down Liquor, Ads

By LOUISE SCHALLER

ROMEONVILLE -- Two issues brought before the Romeoville village board Wednesday drew opposition from Mayor John O'Hara. A letter from a local publication asking for a contract on legal advertising drew the first no from O'Hara.

Jerry Capps, trustee, asked the village attorney to investigate the possibility of a license being issued to another package liquor store. O'Hara, liquor commissioner, said he would not sign the permit.

William Meyer, treasurer, was given permission to invest $25,000 in treasury bills.

Bids will be sought by the police department on a contract for a rental squad car. One of those now on lease is due to be returned to the car agency.

Purchase of drain tiles in the amount of $5,000 was approved. Part of these will be used on Normantown Rd. to clear the drainage problems on Montrose Dr.

A two wheel tractor will be purchased for the street department at a cost of $9,000.

An executive session in excess of one hour was held. There were no announcements. Salaries and benefits for village employees were discussed.

Finance committee members will meet Sept. 13 at 7:30 p.m.

Next meeting will be Sept. 17 at 7:30 p.m.

Trade Salary Pledge Charges

By ANN KARKUT

LOCKPORT -- Both the teachers and the custodians of District 205 High Schools rejected the salary proposals approved by the board at last week's meeting.

Before the board approved the teacher salary proposal, Superintendent Harold Scholle said that the teachers had accepted a rough draft of the contractual agreement. The school board held a negotiation meeting Aug. 21 and discussed the contract. Scholle said the teachers' contracts had been legally refined. He said the teachers asked to have their attorneys work out any legal decisions.

Richard Manley of the LTO negotiation committee read a statement on behalf of the LTO. He said the LTO negotiation team will recommend the staff reject this contract. He asked why the board was in a hurry to adopt the proposal now. Scholle said he needed the contracts approved for teachers' payroll.

Manley said the contract had been accepted in May but in June contracts were altered by the board and administration. District 205 teachers do not have a contract, said Manley. Teaching staff has the opportunity to accept or reject the contracts and Manley hopes the contracts are not an administrative duty as so many things seem to be.

William Brill, board president, said he assumed the bargaining is done and the negotiations are legally bound. Both sides have been advised in many meetings and he hoped the negotiations could continue in closed sessions.

Steve Platko said he thought the negotiations were done at this point and the teachers were allowed legal opinion on the contracts.

Manley said the changes were significant and he felt both the board and Scholle were being presumptuous in adopting this contract. Frank Lynch suggested both attorneys get together and iron out the legal opinions.

Superintendent Scholle asked Manley if the teachers' attorney, not named to date, would be willing to get together with the school board attorney this Thursday at Lockport West High at 8:30 p.m. Manley said the attorney would be there if he did not have a prior commitment. Many of the points do not reflect legal changes, said Manley.

Kenneth Strong, president of the Custodians Welfare Association, said his group would like to negotiate further and was in agreement with the contract approved by the board.

Platko said he got the feeling that the custodians felt they hadn't really negotiated. Scholle said many discussions were held.

Tom Wilson and Joan Straka voted no on accepting the custodians' contracts. Felix Borio was absent. Wilson felt the board should negotiate further.

Russ Thomason, custodian, said he didn't feel they had any negotiations as everything seemed to be agreed upon previously by the board.

Scholle said the custodians had 12 demands. Custodians had asked for $1,000 yearly increase in wages, no limit on sick leave, 15 days a year to start for sick leave, three days distress leave a year, three days for funeral of immediate family, vacation increases with yearly service, one-half pay for accumulated sick days if retiring or leaving, substitute pay of $24, Lincoln's birthday a holiday, change of hospital insurance, requested board to make a copy of negotiations and final agreement for non-certificated employees and retention of non-certificated persons who may move out of the district.

Board approved the cafeteria employees salary schedule on a three year program as recommended by Superintendent Scholle.

A district coordinator of vocational programs will be one of the four teachers previously assigned to this program. Salary will be $1,500. Board approved this recommendation of the superintendent with Brill voting no.

Duties of the district coordinator would be to handle all details, review and study the present programs.

A half-time matron at West High was approved.

Setback Future Dim

FRANKFORT -- Several zoning matters occupied the attention of the Frankfort Village board at its meeting following the Labor Day weekend.

The recommendation of the village zoning board of appeals approving the petition of the McIntosh company for re-classification of a tract at the north end of Lincoln Meadows, on the south side of U.S. 30, from

B-1 to B-2, for a shopping center, was approved.

The board also approved the rescinding of the original covenant with McIntosh restricting the property as the site for a motel and restaurant. The petition seeking this relief was filed with the board by Attorney George O'Brien, representing the realty firm.

In allowing the new classification of B-2, proposed a restriction which would bar development of the shopping complex on a piecemeal basis.

An amendment to the zoning ordinance making minor corrections in a measure, adopted last April 7, relating to classification of 67 acres owned by the Frankfort Investment Co. between Pleasant Hill Cemetery and Elsner Rd., was adopted by the village board. All of the property north of the creek is zoned R-3 (multiple dwellings accommodating more than two families) while the property south of the creek is classified I-1 (light industry).

At the next meeting of the board, Sept. 15, Village Attorney August Santoro is to present a petition, addressed to the zoning board of appeals, which would permit

County Zoning Board Gives Recommendations

WILL COUNTY -- The County zoning board of appeals has summarized cases heard through Aug. 27. Zoning board recommended rezoning I-1, R-1, and F to B-3 as requested by the LaSalle National Bank, as trustee, for some 19.7 acres east of Rt. 45 and south of the Rock Island railroad tracks in Frankfort Township. No objectors were present.

Area is considered suitable for a regional little league baseball park.

Richard Kovar requested rezoning R-2 to B-1-C for a part of lot 15 in Lincoln Estates located between 78th and 80th Aves. north of Rt. 30 in Frankfort Township. No objectors were present. Zoning board recommended rezoning as it deemed the area suitable for rebuilding and customizing autos.

Building of a private club serving alcoholic beverages to its members as well as providing a picnic area and swimming pool was recommended by the zoning board. The board reduced the area of rezoning to a parcel 50 by 90 feet. Rezoning from F to B-2 was requested by Bernard Seeley for a portion of land on the south side of Bruce Rd. about 600 feet west of Farrell Rd. in Lockport Township. Persons present were both objectors and those in favor of the petition. Also recommended was a site proper for an advertising sign on the north side of I-80 north of Francis Rd. in New Lenox Township. Rezoning F to B-1-C was requested.

Board Makes Final Payment To Mazzucco

By BEV SMUTNAK
CREST HILL -- Chaney School board authorized final payment of $12,000 to Mazzucco Construction Company at Tuesday's session. The Board had withheld this payment for three years as they were not satisfied with the Monge Junior High School building. The school is not completed to the board's satisfaction.

James Enix of Beling Engineering Company discussed phase two of the life safety work. The board authorized Beling to let bids for the electrical work of the safety code. The board said any interested contractor may contact Beling for specifications. Bids will be accepted until 11 a.m., Oct. 7.

Mrs. Sharon Elmore was recommended by Superintendent A. L. Carpentier to teach fifth grade at Chaney.

A duplicating machine will be purchased from Standard Duplicator Sales for $395.65. The only other bidder was Tri-County Offset Sales for $415.80.

Next board meeting is Tuesday, Sept. 16, 7 p.m. at Monge School.

Sept. 11 Farm Day

WILL COUNTY -- Farmers will see examples of crop growing practices that can line their pockets with dollars at the Agronomy Research Center Field Day on Sept. 11 says Will County Extension Advisor A.A. Wicklein.

University of Illinois agronomists will be at the annual event to answer questions about the research plots. The center is located south and west of Joliet.

3 Terms Renewed

NEW LENOX -- Three members of the New Lenox planning commission whose terms expire, have been re-appointed to three year terms. The appointments were made by Mayor Joseph Hartung and approved by the village board.

LEMONT--Two new members were named to the pollution committee by Mayor John J. Kujawa at an August meeting of the Lemont Village Board.

Named to fill committee vacancies were David Tolle of 1126 Hillview Dr., and Carl Ahlberg of 900 Singer, both long-time village residents. Both are employed at Argonne National Laboratories. Tolle works in hematology and Ahlberg in chemistry and data processing.

Members of the committee assured the board that both of these men would be an asset to the committee through the knowledge that they have gained through their employment.

James Rhodes of 1110 Hillview Dr., was appointed as chairman of the committee, and Harry Swanson of 409 Lemont St., was named secretary.

Sponsors Bicycle Check

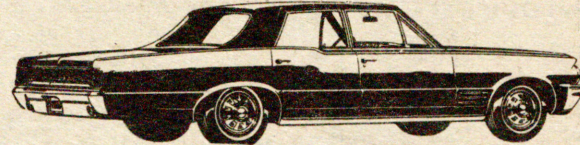

LOCKPORT -- Lockport Loyal Order of Moose, with the assistance of the Lockport Police Department, will sponsor a safety bicycle check-up Saturday, Sept. 13, from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

All children of the Lockport area are invited to take advantage of this check up. Co-chairmen in charge are William Blazekovich of the Moose and Richard Morrelli of the police.

former chairman of the county board subdivision committee; and Charles Eller, secretary of the planning body and employed in the Will County mapping and planning department. Their terms will expire in September, 1972.

A request made of the village board by John Francis for approval of a plan to establish a parking lot on some property of his near the Rock Island station was referred to the planning commission for recommendation. Francis proposes to level the ground, put in a stone base, and provide parking on a monthly rental basis.

Local Control of Tainted Meat Coming

A Congressional legislative requirement that the states establish meat inspection programs at least equal to federal standards is expected to close a loophole that has resulted in the needless poisoning of many persons.

individual states is not.

Correction of this condition, which is required by Dec. 15, should eliminate such tragedies as the epidemic of trichinosis, or poisoning by tainted pork, that occurred in the little town of Washington, Mo., (population 8,000) last year.

Trichinosis is caused by the parasite Trichinella spiralis (trichina) that pigs carry in their flesh. Trichina cannot be spotted in the living animal; only in the cut-up carcass after slaughter.

The adult living larvae get into the human digestive tract, where they proliferate into hundreds of slender little worms. Some are eliminated. Some migrate to the muscles, where they establish themselves in or between the muscle fibers and become encysted (encased).

They may remain undetected in this state for many years. If they reproduce at the site, they cause excessive swelling and inflammation. Incubation period is about 45 days, long enough for the victim to have forgotten the source of the trouble.

The symptoms -- excruciating pain, extremely high fever, and a high white cell count -- are most often mistaken for other serious illnesses, and trichinosis is not suspected or diagnosed.

Last year, while only 65 cases of trichinosis were reported in the rest of the U.S., Washington, Mo., reported 70 cases.

The culprit in the Washington epidemic was summer sausage that had been processed under uncontrolled conditions in a butcher's basement and therefore was exempt from inspection.

The Junior Scientist

Science Vs. Government Control

Copyright 1969 World Book Science Service

Should the government be allowed to control research?

Scientists have long cherished their freedom of inquiry -- what to study and how to conduct their research. But lately things have gotten a bit complicated.

There is, of course, a great deal of scientific effort related to military matters and everyone pretty much agrees that the government has the right to keep that research secret.

These classified government programs are generally very large and well-financed. The man who decides to "go it alone" on a similar project is likely to be left behind by his colleagues.

Thus, many of the ethical and moral problems of a scientist choosing his own research have been avoided -- so far.

The Atomic Energy Commission recently issued a regulation that makes it illegal for scientists to do any research on the so-called gas centrifuge process, except on government contract.

This is a process for separating the explosive kind of uranium from the nonexplosive kind.

With adequate amounts of explosive uranium, it is quite easy to build nuclear weapons. And the government doesn't want just anybody to have that capability!

This particular restriction on scientists' freedom does seem justified. But it represents a change in national policy. Where will this policy lead?

What is the right balance between the "proper" control of research and freedom of scientific inquiry? This is an ethical, political, and social problem that is going to be with us for many years.

EYE ON SCIENCE

By JOE COSTA

More than 500 million people in 33 nations watched on TV July 20 when Neil Armstrong and Eugene Aldrin became the first men to set foot on the moon.

This stupendous audience was able to share in the historic event because of orbiting communications satellites.

Telecasts from the Apollo spacecraft and from the moon were transmitted around the world via the Comsat Corporation's Intelsat II satellite over the Atlantic and two Intelsat III satellites above the Pacific and Indian oceans.

ATS-1 and ATS-3 (Applications Technology Satellites), managed by NASA, provided the voice, TV and weather pictures of the launch and recovery areas. The ATS-1 satellite provided the prime voice link between the U.S.S. Hornet in the Pacific recovery area and Washington.

The Department of Defense Tacsat-1 satellite was the primary UHF voice link between the Apollo 11 crew and aircraft, ship, and ground stations during recovery operations.

It also transmitted the first live coverage of a major news event to the people of Alaska. Early Bird (Intelsat I), the world's first commercial communications satellite launched in April, 1965, and retired early this year, was reactivated last June to serve as a back-up satellite.

Roads A Real Pain

Detouring has become a way of life for area motorists and those transients who elect to travel on U.S. 45 through these parts.

Most drivers don't complain. They know that detours are but temporary --a few weeks, a few months, a few years at the outside--and following detour signs is a sort of game. Really following detour signs is a simple game and doesn't require the brainwork and steel nerve that one must exert and possess to master the interchange signs found on the superhighways.

What is grueling motorists in the area today is that the state highway department has crossed them up by developing a new game--"Surprise!"

The highway chaps started in by closing U.S. 45 between 179th St., on the north and 191st St. on the south. There are numerous signs on U.S. 30, Wolf Rd., U.S. 6, and portions of Rt. 45 still open saying that a detour is coming up. All fair and above board.

The new game "Surprise!" differs from the game "Detour" in that it doesn't use signs. The state just picks out a road, closes it and says nothing. Then when the unsuspecting motorist reaches the spot he finds the intersection blocked, thoroughly blocked.

Surprised? You bet he is and the smiles of any road workers who chance to be passing clearly saying, "Another sucker," do little to add to his happiness.

Some motorists contend this is a sneaky way for the state highway department to be doing business. The people building the road have suggested to the highway moguls that signs be erected in Mokena and Tinley Park warning drivers that U.S. 45 is no-man's land for a goodly stretch in the 191st St. area and to re-chart their route while they have a chance to turn around. But the state, the road builders were informed, isn't spending any more on signs.

The easiest way to travel between Tinley and Mokena is via 159th St., better known to the public as U.S. 6 with access to this road being gained by way of Oak Park Ave. and Wolf Rd., or by using Harlem Ave. and U.S. 30.

There are several other ways one can go if he has time and an adventurous spirit, it was pointed out, but one does not get lost easily on U.S. 6 or 30.

What Is Best Use?

Does District 91, Kelvin Grove-Milne Grove Schools, own the old Central Grade School grounds, a choice block in downtown Lockport?

There was some dispute about this several years ago. The block was originally donated to the city as a public square.

The school district received a deed to the property. Now the Lockport Civic and Commerce Association is challenging the legality of this deed.

C&CA officials would like to see the school and grounds remain - public property. The C&CA pledged $500 to the city council to investigate the matter thoroughly. The city council accepted the offer and will hire an attorney.

School District 91 will open bids on the property Sept. 12. Minimum bid acceptable is $225,000. Several councilmen felt they would spoil the district's chances of receiving acceptable bids. However, the school district will not lose either way as it will be paid even if the deed is found to be invalid.

Although the school building has long outlived its usefulness for a school it would be to the advantage of the city to have it retained as a park area. Lockport Township Park District is interested in the property but would have to hold a referendum to get funds for it.

The challenge has been offered by the C&CA and the city council will investigate the legality of the deed. The whole case should prove interesting.

Where New School Cash Goes

State aid to schools has increased steadily in the past few years. It goes even higher during this 1969-70 school year because the foundation level of state support is now $520 per pupil. This is an increase of $120 over the 1968-69 figure.

Locally, the increase amounts to a lot of money. It's important to know where these funds will be spent.

In Will County, according to figures given by the state superintendent of public instruction, the increase amounts to an extra $4 million. The total funding for school districts in the county will be an estimated $12,323,496.

The new support base will generate for Cook County schools an additional $95 million, giving a total estimated assistance figure of $239,567,073 (that's nearly 43 per cent of the whole state total).

Boyd Bucher, Will County superintendent of schools, gives the view that most of the windfall will end up in payroll checks.

Bucher sees more teachers on the payrolls in area school districts, plus higher salaries. Acquisition of instructional materials will be the other major area demanding use of the additional money, Bucher thinks.

There are other areas too, the superintendent says, noting that school boards won't have to look far to find them.

In the critical area of financing for improvements and day to day operations, sales of tax anticipation warrants can be curtailed. Borrowing money to pay the bills till the tax funds come has always been costly. With more money on hand, there is less likelihood of running short of operating cash.

Deficits and long-term debts can be lowered, Bucher also thinks.

The most significant area, in terms of what our children are learning day to day, is the "goodly portion" for staff salaries that Bucher placed at the head of the list.

In some school districts, the pupil teacher ratio will improve. With money to hire additional teachers, class size can be cut. In many areas, the classes will be in new buildings, requiring staffs for job positions that didn't exist before the buildings were built. Hopefully, the generally higher salaries school boards have been able to authorize have attracted better teachers.

Children in two specialty categories will have special benefits, Bucher points out.

Mandatory special education programs for the mentally and physically handicapped must now be operating for the first full year. Special education classes must be small and require specially trained teachers. Kindergarten classes become mandatory beginning a year from now. Many school districts have launched their programs already.

Bucher, then, is "looking forward to one of the best years we have ever had." For what difference money makes, all the signs point that way.

Letters To The Editor

The Lockport Township Park District summer playground program concluded Aug. 15. We operated 13 playgrounds throughout Lockport Township.

The combined playground attendance was 35,270 children.

The children went on trips to Lincoln Park zoo, natural history museum, olympics day at Lockport West High athletic field, campfire program and awards day at Dellwood Park.

Your paper did its usual excellent job in publishing our events and programs.

In behalf of the Lockport Township Park District commissioners and myself, may I thank you for the wonderful job you did for us this summer.

Sincerely yours,

Nixon Revenue Sharing Plan Gets City Cash

(Copyright 1969, Congressional Quarterly Inc.)

WASHINGTON -- President Nixon's revenue-sharing plan would in many localities apparently pump more money per resident into cities than into neighboring suburbs.

That is because many cities tax their residents more heavily than suburbs. Tax effort would be a factor in determining localities' aid under the President's Aug. 13 revenue-sharing proposal.

In a check of 10 major cities and selected suburbs, all but two cities -- Cleveland and Minneapolis -- made a heavier per-capita revenue effort than their suburbs.

Some experts had expressed a fear that the formulas would tend to reward the wealthier suburbs at the expense of core cities. Suburbs with high-income residents presumably could afford higher taxes than could most cities. Thus, the critics argued, the suburbs could show a higher revenue effort in terms of revenue per-capita than could the cities.

However, the survey of 10 cities and selected suburbs showed that the cities generally collected more revenues per-capita than their suburbs. The survey, by no means exhaustive, used 1966-67 revenues and 1960 population. If population rose in the meantime, it would tend to lower per-capita revenues. In many areas of the nation, the suburban population went up relatively faster than the urban population. Thus, some of the suburban figures in the survey may overstate the per-capita revenue in relation to that of their nearby cities.

Following is a list of per-capita revenues for 10 major cities and selected suburbs:

- * Baltimore $225, Montgomery County $212.
- * Boston $262, Brockton $215, Cambridge $237.50.
- * Chicago $106, Evanston $79, Cicero $63.50.
- * Cleveland $101, Cleveland Heights $67, Lakewood $132.
- * Detroit $127, Ann Arbor $101.
- * Minneapolis $102, Bloomington $125, Minnetonka $43.50.
- * New York City $373, New Rochelle $164, Mt. Vernon $113.
- * Philadelphia $162, Haverford $38, Penn Hills $39, Upper Darby $47.
- * San Francisco $300, San Mateo $89, Palo Alto $141.
- * Seattle $115, Mercer Island $41.

Population and Personal Income, by State: 1967-68

TABLE shows the total population, and the population by three age group categories, in the United States. These figures, plus the listing in the right-hand columns of the table showing personal income, are factors in determining how much money will come back into a given locality under President Nixon's revenue-sharing plan.

Across The Editor's Desk

By ANN KARKUT

It's a lot of fun to watch parades even though you arrive hours early to be assured of a parking spot as well as a spot from which you can see what's going on. The area certainly had its share of parades over the Labor Day weekend.

Although you don't really get to see much of what's in a parade, it's also a lot of fun to participate in a parade. My first participation was the Sunday before Labor Day in Rockdale. This year my better half was called on to enter his horses in three parades. Since I wasn't involved in any band participation that day I decided to get in on the fun and rode the little skittish gray mare as daughter number two, Susie, rode my palomino. Our little seven year old grandson, Bobby, also rode his pony. That youngster was so proud to be a part of the parade his little face was just beaming with joy and pride.

The three of us rode first followed by a miniature covered wagon pulled by a team of ponies. This was driven by my better half with two nieces, Sandy and Kim, and nephews, Kirk and Donnie, inside the wagon, followed by son number three, Chris, on his pony and my nephew, Mike, on my husband's bay horse.

It was hot that afternoon but we patiently waited our turn. It was rewarding though as we took home a lovely trophy and had our names announced over the loud speaker.

Now the parade was over and the horses and ponies had to be reloaded on the truck and trailer. Apparently a couple of them enjoyed Rockdale so much they didn't want to leave and gave us a little bit of trouble in loading. But at last we were ready to roll with the wagon behind the car.

We arrived home tired but proud and contented. I should say I was probably the only tired one as the youngsters attended the Lemont Keepataw Day celebration that evening. Being a good scout, nephew Mike took them for a couple of hours.

Six a.m. Monday morning came only too soon as the horses had to be fed and watered before loading for the Naperville parade at 10:30 a.m. By 8 a.m. the three horses and the grandson's pony were loaded and on their way.

Since Susie and Chris were marching with District 92 band that afternoon in Lemont, I stayed home to see that they got off to a good start. As usual, the band came home with another trophy and we're all proud of the youngsters and their band director, Jack Williamson.

Granddaughter Sherri struck up a conversation with the clown who had the donkey. She wasn't one bit afraid of him either and as he rode by later in the parade she yelled out to him, "Don't fall off your horse, clown". He deliberately slid off the donkey's backside then and she exclaimed, "I told you not to fall off your horse."

Our third parade and final one for the season will be over this Sunday. We plan on taking the whole kit and kaboodle to the Bolingbrook parade just as we did at Rockdale. This is grandson Bobby's home territory and I expect he'll be even prouder when his neighborhood playmates see him ride his pony. Bobby will be an old pro at riding in parades as this will be number three for him.

High Hopes Become Reality In A Year

(The Frankfort Public Library recently celebrated its first anniversary in its 27 Ash St. location. Arlene Santoro, librarian, has prepared an interesting report of the progress of this year. Her report follows.)

"Last summer our hopes were flying high as we left what must have been the smallest, darkest, coldest library quarters of any Illinois library. The new location, the Ash street side of the Zechlin building in the heart of Frankfort, offered us over 1500 square feet of newly remodeled, well-lit space. Now not only do we have heat in the winter, but due to a new air conditioner, our patrons enjoy comfort for reading or browsing all year long.

"But it is not only good facilities that make a good library. 'We need books, books, and more books,' is the now familiar cry of the librarian repeated at almost every board meeting. And though the need is ever-present, it is hard to believe we were able to operate with the size of the collection at the time of moving. We have doubled our adult collection by adding over 1,100 volumes.

"We now have a well stocked best seller selection and indeed most times can offer a book without the waiting period so common to larger libraries. Our mystery shelf has expanded from 75 books to over 250, and a science fiction

ATHLETE'S FOOT, FOOT ODOR? READ THIS --

M. Sgt. Geo. Cofor writes from Southeast Asia: "I had the worst case of foot odor a person could have -- tried all the remedies I could find. Then I got T-4-L and the F.O. was gone in two days."

"I had 1/2 bottle left. I saw this Sgt. limping from a bad case of running sores on his foot -- had them for years and couldn't wear regulation black socks. I gave him the last of my T-4-L and even helped him apply it. In 3 days his foot was better and in one week all clear. He was thrilled and now wears black socks." You Can Beat Seven Marriage Threats SOUTHWEST -- Seven basic problems lead to marital conflict, according to a New Jersey marriage counselor.

The problems cited by Mrs. Ruth Horowitz, a professional therapist, involve children, sex, alcohol, in-laws, religion, house-keeping and finances. But, Mrs. Horowitz points out, these are often only the symptoms, not the cause.

"You'll find that these problems cause less difficulty -- in fact, they often evaporate -- once the underlying resentments and hurts are worked through and understood," she said.

To illustrate her point, Mrs. Horowitz cited one family therapy session during which "the children were saying terrible things to the father." The therapist looked at the mother. "I never saw such an angry, mean-looking expression on a woman. She was giving them the subliminal message of how much she had against that father and they were getting that message loud and clear."

One common area of conflict is finances. "Money," Mrs. Horowitz pointed out, "also has emotional value. Some people feel that it gives them status, prestige and power.

But at its deepest level, money really stands for love." A woman often buys an extravagant hat or expensive perfume to convince herself that she is really loved. "If a spouse misuses money," said the therapist, "then what happens is the partner feels a threat to whatever values he associates with money."

Another problem centers on drinking. "Very often, though not always, alcohol takes the place of love from the mate. When we have worked through the block that's damping back the love between them, then the need for drinking is diminished and, in some cases, altogether abated."

Mrs. Horowitz finds it helpful to visit in their own homes the people who come to her for therapy. On one such visit the problem centered on the husband's drinking. He was a self-made man with little formal education. His wife, however, was an educated woman. At dinner, Mrs. Horowitz said, the children talked chiefly to the mother, ignoring the father or receiving his comments with disdain.

"Now this man, when he finally couldn't stand it any more, would drink. He would drink enough to permit himself to express all of his anger and enough to let him develop an amnesia so he wouldn't know what he had done. And he did wild things. Once, after the house had been freshly-painted, he destroyed the results by scribbling on the walls with a black crayon."

Problems in other areas, whether they seemingly center on sex, children or house-keeping, often obscure deeper ones that the individual involved refuses to face.

An additional, underlying factor in the emotional problems of many mature women, whether they are married, widowed, divorced or single, is the menopause -- the so-called change of life. The menopause can cause both physiological and emotional upsets, Mrs. Horowitz said. "I always send them to a gynecologist because they can be helped enormously with hormones at this time."

She cited an emotionally charged situation that can be troublesome at this period in a woman's life. "Mothers very often come into menopause just as their daughters are coming into adolescence, and here's where the plot very often thickens, because the mother sometimes is jealous of her beautiful and budding adolescent daughter.

"The girl will really be attracted toward her father and will be somewhat jealous, and therefore hostile toward her mother. Now with the mother in menopause and the daughter hostile toward her, the stage is set for fireworks. Because the mother is in menopause we let her behave like the dickens. Really, we shouldn't. The daughter needs understanding at this time quite as much as the mother." The mother, she suggested, requires medical help.

Mrs. Horowitz also suggests that couples with marital or family problems seek professional help. If they are unable to do so, she advises honest self-appraisal. "Try to stand in your mate's shoes, sit in his chair, and try to feel what life is like for him. Ask yourself: what does he need from me? How can I make his life better?"

"If you try to make his life better and meet his needs, I think you will find he is going to reciprocate by looking at your needs and trying to make your life better too," said the marriage counselor.

Wasted Time

Dear Miss Brookfield:

Because I was raised by an alcoholic father and a silent, insecure mother, I was very self-conscious and shallow until I was past forty. At that time, I found religious faith and discovered an abundance of creative talent in myself. My problem is that I am hampered by life-time habits of self-indulgence. I drift through each day, wasting time, flitting from one task to another without accomplishing anything. I would like to write. Is it possible to develop practical work habits without help from an outside authority?

D.M., Carthage, Tex.

Dear D.M.:

Do you drift through the day when you try to write or only when you are faced with the washing, ironing, and cleaning? We can't predict success but, having accomplished so much already, why not try to organize your time with a work schedule? Each day, set aside specific tasks and then see to it that you get them done.

You may be interested to know one expert claims that women waste too much time on household tasks. Much of their work, she says, is "busy work." For example: bi-weekly shopping eliminates the necessity for daily, time-consuming shopping trips. This authority maintains that household chores can be performed in far less time with better organization.

If your inquiry was partly prompted by your inability to function creatively, you may find it encouraging to know that many creative persons find self-discipline difficult. One reason many of them develop regular work habits is that they have to earn a living. Many writers would probably forego their work habits if they hadn't become accustomed to regular eating ones.

Cold Husband

Dear Miss Brookfield:

I am in my forties. I work to add to our income. I have looks, a good figure and keep myself and our house neat and clean. For many years now, my husband has been working until late hours. He does not receive overtime but sometimes works as late as 10 P.M. Lately, he has been avoiding sex for months at a time. I feel as if I am losing my love for him. What do you suggest?

C.M., Bangor, Ma.

Dear C.M.:

He may be exhausted, considering the hours he has been working. Give him a chance, before you close the books on your marriage. Start off by discussing this problem with him, if you haven't already. He may require a medical checkup. If his health is good, you may both benefit by consulting a marriage counselor.

Many cases of sexual refusal are attributed by experts to the expression of resentment over interpersonal problems. When married people express their frustrations through negative emotions such as anger, bitterness and resentment, it is easy to feel convinced that love has fled. After you discuss the problem with your husband, you can help in the days to follow by showing the positive emotions of affection and encouragement. These may seem to be small and ordinary things but they can be vitally important to the success of a marriage.

Have you a problem as a mature woman, or with one? For advice and help write to Margaret Brookfield, Information Center on the Mature Woman, 3 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Open Letter from the HIRSCHS'

Dear Friends,

Experience, they say, is the best teacher. Certainly this is true of the funeral director.

The proper direction of a funeral is something one cannot learn from books alone. There are countless details involved, each funeral differing from another. An understanding of all the problems can only come through actual experience.

We trust that our many years of experience in the funeral profession have served us well.

Respectfully,

Tim Hirsch

Rt. 45 - Mokena

Reject Four Lot Subdivision

LOCKPORT--The City council rejected a county zoning board recommendation for a four-lot subdivision at their meeting. The subdivision is located at 145th St., outside the city limits. But with the city's mile and one-half jurisdiction.

The planner did not specify sidewalks for these four homes and this was the basis for the council's rejection. The present city ordinance states that all subdivisions will have sidewalks and curbing.

George Burnette, chairman of the Lockport Planning Commission, said the planning group went along with the project as it only involved four lots and there is only five acres remaining to be developed in that area.

Councilman George Wolfe does not agree with this theory. Mayor George Nordstrom commented the city should abide by its ordinance.

Swen Nelson said, "Enforce the ordinance."

Plans are underway for a pre-annexation agreement for a 10-acre parcel located on the northwest corner of 151st St. adjacent to Port Ridge which is in the city limits.

Joseph Zemaitis has requested rezoning from R-1 to R-4, multiple family residences, for an apartment complex on the 10 acres. Public hearing has been set for Oct. 6 at the regular council meeting. Attorney Joseph Fitzgerald appeared in his client's behalf.

Jim Doyle asked the council once again what could be done to stop the spray painting odors at his home located near John's car lot. Attorney Eugene Korst said painting is permissible under the existing zoning ordinance.

Mayor Nordstrom said he contacted the Will County health officer who is interested only in air pollution.

Lockport does not have an air pollution ordinance. Owner of the car lot will be requested to appear at the next council session.

In other council action the War Mothers were granted permission to sell poinsettias Oct. 10.

The Council adopted a resolution setting aside the week of Sept. 14-21 as Cystic Fibrosis Week in Lockport. A fund raising campaign will be conducted.

Councilman Len Strahanoski was authorized to change tree trimming companies if necessary.

Finance chairman, Swen Nelson; city clerk Don Murphy, and Bill Swenson, treasurer, were authorized to invest motor fuel tax funds. Nelson said the state will pay the funds monthly from now on. "We will benefit from the investment," said Murphy. First allocation of MFT funds was $6,157.53 said Nelson.

Mrs. Betty Haas has resigned as radio clerk operator from the police department.

Wolfe will handle the details on the fall clean-up sponsored by the city. The date should be announced by the next council session.

A contract was to be signed to allow Robert Hamilton Engineers to proceed with the Rt. 7 and 7th St. traffic light and road widening project.

Councilman Dick Cronholm said he inspected the building at 420 E. 10th St. and that it being "structurally sound" was a matter of opinion. The building should be condemned he commented. Councilman Jim Miller said it would cost as much to fix as to rebuild a new home. Owner, Mrs. North, will be ordered to have it demolished or repaired.

Safety Officer Dick Morrell will be advised to place yield signs as necessary around the city schools.

The two corresponded thru the years but it was not until last week that they saw each other again. Mr. Bauer resides at Brandon, Manitoba, Can., and is now home again. This picture was taken at the home of Mrs. Klinger's daughter, Mrs. Albert P. Kuchenbecker, 189th St., and 113th Av., Mokena.

There is a new vice president appointed for this year. This was necessitated by the resignation of Mrs. David Juric who had been elected last spring. Mrs. Juric is moving from the area, and our best wishes go with her and her family.

The new Vice President appointed in her place by the board is Mrs. Owen McClellan. She will surely fill in admirably for the remaining time of the term...

Ex-Frosh Team Nucleus

By ED DECKER

LEMONT -- Coach Jan Cralle has high hopes for his Lemont High School varsity squad this year. With 14 returning lettermen as a nucleus of his 37-man squad, Coach Cralle hopes the team's pro offense will mesh efficiently.

Except for a few positions the starting players have not yet been selected and it was apparent that each of the gridiron hopefuls was determined to show to good advantage. The practice field was a soggy and slippery area one afternoon while watching the squad scrimmage. Despite the adverse conditions the practice ran quite well.

There seemed to be an air of intense optimism as each of the players blocked, tackled, passed, caught and ran (according to his position) with apparent pleasure.

Most coaches would not be too optimistic with a line averaging 180 lbs. although tackle Harry Zorn at 230 lbs. would be welcome in any line. These problems are secondary to Jan Cralle's philosophy of high school football. He wants his players to enjoy the game and perhaps even more important he wants them all to play.

This 'everyone plays' program includes the lightest member of the squad, Dan Festin, a backfield featherweight at 120 lbs.

Mike Heinz, 6'4" and weighing in at 195 lbs. and Dennis Bubinas, a fast 170 lbs. at 6'3", will undoubtedly see a lot of action at the end spots.

Other lettermen are John Benda, tackle; Lee Virtel, defensive back; Fred Berndt, back; Mike Heinz, end; Rich Gendeman, tackle; Pierce Spencer, flanker; Dennis Bubinas, end; Mike Olinger, center, and Hank Pierce, end.

Sept. 13 will find the Lemont team facing their first foe of the 1969 season when they journey to Chicago Christian High School. This is a team Lemont has not faced in the past seasons. They will be doing their best to start the schedule with a big win.

OnSquad

LOCKPORT -- Harold Thomas, a six foot guard from Lockport Central High School, is one of three latest arrivals to the Eagle basketball camp at Robert Morris College, Carthage, Ill.

Thomas averaged 16 points a game while in high school.

Adams Powers Into 3rd

By SANDY CARTER

SOUTHWEST -- Mike Adams of Crest Hill powered through to a third place rating in the 40-lap feature Sunday of Labor Day weekend.

Gary Byers, Monticello, Ind., was the big winner though when the United Auto Racing Association took to the Mazon Speed Bowl.

Byers got the lead and held on for a beautiful finish. Tom Steiner of Orland Park was second.

Jim Gates of Aurora won the Trophy Dash with Phil Palombo second and Gene Varing third.

Heat wins went to Bill Krueger of Lombard, Byers, Chuck Tuna of Joliet, and Adams.

The Semi went to Tuna, Joe Bell of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, second and Joliet's Ron Foster third.

Jim Adair of Indianapolis, Ind. won the consolation race with Joliet's Bob MaGee second and Jay Vurshious third. This was Vurshious' second time in a midget and his first race. He had to qualify the midget once, but didn't make the race. He didn't try to drive over his head and held on for third.

Another large crowd and a large field of Midgets made for another good show Monday afternoon (Labor Day) for the UARA Midgets.

Tom Steiner of Orland Park set fast time for the afternoon with 12:73. Steiner took the first heat, came in third in the Trophy Dash.

Gene Varing of Oak Lawn won the Second heat with Tom Ward of Lafayette, Ind. second and Aurora's Jim Gates third. Behind Gates were Bill Kollman of Orland Park, Bill Krueger of Lombard, and Elmwood Park's John Lode.

The third heat saw the roll cage once again prove themselves, when Joliet's Ron Foster went off the bank between third and fourth turn. What looked like a ride down the bank, ended up with a wheel flying higher than the bank. The Midget took the blow and the cage bent. The driver walked up the bank minus a tooth, shook up, but okay.

Joe Bell of Cedar Rapids, Iowa won the third heat after the re-start with Bob Thomlinson second and Lombard's Bill Krueger third.

DeBeau came back to win the Semi with Bell second and Jim Hill of Des Plaines third.

The 50-lap feature was won by Aurora's Jim Gates.

Gates started on the third row on the inside and had a real battle trying to get around Gary Byers for second position. Gates got second spot on the 40-lap and got by the leader, John Lode, on the 43 lap to hold on for the checkered flag. Lode held on to second with Byers third Krueger fourth and Johnny Troy of Greenfield, Wis. fifth.

Gary Byers of Monticello, Ind. won the Grundy County Fair over-all Championship. Byers had 305 points with Jim Gates second with 243, Bill Krueger third with 221 and Bill Kollman fourth with 214.

Joliet's Jim Anderson was the Champion car owner with Wayne Gates second, Max Reichenbach of Lombard third and Bob Corson of Harvey fourth.

The Trophies were awarded for the most points won for the three races ran during the Fair.

Field Good Squad

By ED DECKER
LOCKPORT --Lockport Central (East) will field a much improved version of their 1968 football team with 11 lettermen returning to strengthen their position.
Bill Zimmer, East's affable coach, talked enthusiastically about his team's chances in the coming 1969 football wars. He was high on the spirit and condition of his squad although it's still early in training.
A line that averages 200 lbs. and is quick seems to give him no small degree of happiness. A center named Randy Yapp at 190 lbs. anchors the line for the multiple offense. Coach Zimmer hopes to capitalize on the speed of his team using the slot "I" with quarterback Gil Fash in command.
Watching the 28 athletes warming up on the East High School field it was obvious that all of them were well versed in fundamentals of the game. Each of the hopefuls worked hard at his assigned position despite the almost 85-degree heat. Blocks were executed, for the most part, in a satisfactory manner. Tackles were generally eager to commit mayhem given the opportunity and the ends were running with a will.

Glen Johnson at split end displayed a good pair of hands of snaring several long tosses in the face of strong defensive maneuvers. By game time Sept. 12, at Carl Sandburg, Johnson should show to good advantage for the offense.
Joe Pekarek, a tight end with few qualms ran well in a number of plays and will undoubtedly give Coach Zimmer many a satisfied smile this fall.
The ideal situation in high school football is to use the platoon system which gives more students a chance to participate and Coach Zimmer hopes to go with

Water Purity, Full Time Legislature Proposed

scheduling of elections and the legislative bodies.

Stone is of the opinion that the legislature should be a full-time job. At present the legislature meets every two years and is overloaded with bills which do not get the attention they deserve, he said.

Election of the governor should not be done at the same time as the national elections and the attorney general should be the person selected for that position by the elected governor, Stone contends.

Other revisions to the constitution sought by Stone are:

- Selection and not election of judges.
- Broadening of powers were cast by Dick Cronholm, Meyers, Wolfe, Bob White and Jim Miller.

Cheadle also reported that the C&CA has approved two projects they would like the city to undertake. First one was to do something about taking the storm water from sewers on east and west streets. Second project was to build a bridge at 10th St. over the I&M Canal with motor fuel tax funds. Cheadle reminded the council they had pledged to do this 10 years ago so the Illinois Commerce Commission would keep the 10th St. railroad crossing open.

The Council had a full membership so George Wolfe brought up the painful subject of sidewalks. Wolfe said the present city ordinance applies only to new subdivisions. He suggested carrying the ordinance one step further to include all new construction within the city.

This brought on a lengthy discussion. Wolfe's motion passed by a six-to-two vote with Cronholm and Nelson opposing this amendment to the sidewalk ordinance.

Mayor George Nordstrom voiced his opposition to this amendment. He said the motion should have included the whole city so the ordinance would not require amendment again.

Attorney Korst said a public hearing is set for Sept. 23 at 7:30 p.m. in city hall to adopt the comprehensive plan and official map prepared by Tec-Search Inc.

invested in the governor and legislature.

Taxation reform heads the list of constitutional changes proposed by William Cairnes. In this vein Cairnes suggests a statutory limit on state income tax, abandonment of the personal property tax and increasing the limits of borrowing power for the state and local governments.

Cairnes also feels annual meetings of the legislature are necessary; off-year election of state officials and an expanded system of home-rule for city and county governments is needed.

As an informative aside, Cairnes noted the 58-page 15,000 word present state constitution as compared with the 20-page 6,700 word U. S. Constitution.

Stewart Loebe joined with Cairnes in his opinion regarding a limit on state income tax and abolition of the personal property tax.

Further constitutional changes should encompass election of the governor in an off year and allowing the governor to select the superintendent of public instruction and justices of the Illinois Supreme Court, according to Loebe.

At the conclusion of the individual presentations, members of the audience were permitted to question the delegates. In reply to a question concerning presentation of the proposed constitutional changes to the people, each of the delegates answered in turn.

Mrs. Anderson was of the opinion that the changes should be voted on separately in broad section. The three male delegates were unanimous in their opinion that the complete document should be voted on and accepted or rejected in its entirety.

Each of the delegates noted they had received numerous questionnaires from various special interest groups. These groups evidently would give their support to the delegates answering the questionnaires and indicating favorable support to the causes of that group.

The first step in the Con-Con procedure will be an election Sept. 23 when the voters of the Ninth District will be asked to choose two delegates from a slate of 13 names on the ballot. The four delegates receiving the most votes will be presented to the voters again on Nov. 14. The voters once again will vote for two delegates. The two delegates receiving the most votes in this election will represent the Ninth District at the Con-Con in Springfield.

This will be a non-partisan election. Only one ballot will be slated at each of the two elections.

Residents 'Burning'

in the early evening hours.

Larry Stonich, 538 Chaney Ave., contractor and owner of some real estate in the immediate area, wanted the burnings stopped since they are a real nuisance and cause property de-valuation. He told of a hot summer evening when the windows and doors in his house were open and winds shifted bringing the thick smoke "right in through the screen door."

James Pate, 544 Elsie Ave., asked the council to give him just one basic idea or answer to take back to the people on his block. Apparently Pate and his neighbors are going to live with pollution until 1971. He was told as a private citizen he could file an injunction.

Alderman Tony Tonich, who also lives in the area, said he doesn't think they will ever stop burning.

Setback Chances Dim

an amendment barring transfer of uses permitted under I-2 (heavy industry) classification once such uses are discontinued.

In such cases the classification would revert to I-1 (light industry).

The plan commission recommended that the village adopt an ordinance requiring a 50-foot set-back from the front property line for commercial buildings. The board instructed Santoro to have an ordinance drawn to this effect for further discussion at the next meeting.

Board members did not appear to be sold on the idea. Most of them thought that it could not be a hard and fast rule. Fifty-foot setbacks might be practical for deep lots along U.S. 30. Trustee Robert Dean said, but in the built up sections such a setback would be impractical.

"If a person had a lot that was only 100 or 125 feet deep," Trustee Lynn Kohl-hagen said, "a 50-foot setback wouldn't leave him much room, especially in view of the plan commission's recommendation that this set-back space be devoted to landscaping. We have an ordinance requiring the use of 20 per cent of a commercial building site to be left for parking. A 50-foot set back for landscaping plus 20 per cent of the site total for parking could leave very little room for anything else."

The subject will be discussed at the next meeting. Burton Breidert, chairman of the plan commission, is to be at the meeting to discuss another matter and it is likely he will be drawn into the debate over the setback landscaping idea.

What the board wants to talk with Breidert about is the commission's other proposal -- that the strip annexation program adopted by the village be extended east on Sauk Trail to Harlem Ave.

Santoro told the board that if it wanted to extend its strip annexation east so it would have a voice in the development of that area it would only be necessary to go another half mile.

Another half mile, Santoro said, would give the village jurisdiction over subdivision layout to Harlem Ave. The law says that when a municipality has a master plan on file with the county recorder, that includes rules and regulations covering subdivisions, it's jurisdiction over such matters extends over a mile and a half radius. The eastern limit on Sauk Trail now is Pfeifer Rd.

The village board has adopted a policy regarding occupancy of homes and buildings. The village has been issuing temporary occupancy permits when a building was practically completed but that is out now. No more temporary occupancy permits. The board is unanimous on that.

The water department is to flush the water mains the latter part of September or early October, it was announced. Police, using a bullhorn, will announce the time before hand to residents.

Street repairs went over the estimate by $77.84, it was reported to the board by John Djerf, of the Robert Hamilton engineering firm. Hamilton is village engineer. The extra payment was approved.

ago house dealing in municipal and school financing, has no idea when such bonds will be marketable.

The board has his assistance, however, together with that of Dwight Egle, cashier of the New Lenox State Bank, Village Attorney Wayne Johnson, James Hearn, an accountant as well as village treasurer, and Robert Thornton, an accountant with the auditing firm of Grumley, Dicke, Thornton and Clarke, which handles the village's books.

John Djerf, an associate of Robert Hamilton, village engineer, pointed out that the state water board not only has ruled that New Lenox must enlarge its plant but must also provide for additional sewage treatment steps.

New Lenox, it was pointed out, is in a growth area, and like other municipalities in similar circumstances, it will find itself forced to meet the demands of the state water board. The water board is not giving any permits to add any new mains to the New Lenox system and has become rather hard-nosed, it was reported, about granting permits for any connections to existing lines.

can system of government works."

Senator Dirksen's body was viewed Tuesday by thousands of mourners in the Capitol rotunda. Memorial services followed at the National Presbyterian Church in Washington.

Graveside services will be held Thursday before burial in his hometown, Pekin, Ill.

Born in 1896 in Pekin, Ill., his introduction to hard work came at an early age.

His father died when the Senator was only five years of age and during his ensuing school years Ev could be seen selling vegetables around town.

The one-time bakery truck driver became one of the most colorful political figures of the American scene. His flamboyant rhetoric and instinct for the innuendo has seldom been matched in Senate history.

Dubbed by many as an actor, Mr. Dirksen lived up to the title. He enjoyed his role to the hilt and worked diligently to perform his duties to the advantage of all Americans.

Despite, or because of, his noted vacillations on innumerable matters before the house during his career, Mr. Dirksen became a giant among men.

His strength, determination to do the best job possible, ability to judge the will of the people and change if it became necessary has left a lingering mark upon the American people.

The senior Senator from Illinois was beloved by many, feared by some and respected by all. His uncompromising philosophy of seeking the best possible life for the people of his state and the country as a whole has gained respect everywhere.

Although his outspoken attitude in certain issues caused concern among the party faithful, his ability to bring unanimity to any cause was cherished.

The 1964 Civil Rights Act might be considered his greatest contribution to all men everywhere.

Despite the outcries of those who opposed this legislation Mr. Dirksen came to understand the Johnson administration's adamant stand on this issue. He fought for the rights of men.

Perhaps his eloquent oratory was his greatest asset. Despite his longing to enlarge his stature in the political history of his country, destiny dictated his role as negotiator and champion of the "old school."

In 1952 Mr. Dirksen was close to the vice-presidential nomination; but the strength of Eisenhower was to prevail. Mr. Dirksen lived to serve under President Nixon the then nominated vice-presidential candidate.

Mr. Dirksen, never a success in private business, found public service to his liking. His rhetoric sublimated those who at first would find fault with his political stance. His 1964 vote for the nomination of Barry Goldwater swept the controversial Arizona Senator on to convention victory.

With the defeat of Goldwater, Mr. Dirksen threw his support to President Johnson against those who opposed the Vietnam policies of the Democratic administration.

The gravel-voiced Senator also aided the Democratic party in the recent ABM controversy. Without the support of Mr. Dirksen the ABM legislation seemed doomed to defeat.

An unruly mane of curly hair that had the appearance of seldom being subjected to a comb or brush added to the personal appeal of the Dirksen legend.

His campaign tours were followed eagerly by his admirers, for it was during these moments that his candid remarks and actions came to the fore.

The ladies were targets of many a Dirksen compliment and, to many, a long-remembered Dirksen kiss. The bussing technique of the Senator along the campaign trail is immortalized in countless photographs.

In the early days of his career, as always, Mr. Dirksen fought for economy in government. In this pursuit he was not too successful due to the policies of four Democratic administrations under which he served.

In recent years his power in the House appropriations committee strongly influenced the spending habits of government.

"Ev", truly a giant of the American political posture, will best be remembered for his strong stand on the rights of the individual despite some outspoken reservations.

His liberal views best expressed in 1964 took a slight turn when he argued the constitutional propriety of the open housing provision of a Senate bill which was eventually defeated.

In the past few years his health was not the best and his frequent hurried visits to the Capitol physician for a few breaths of oxygen sometimes interrupted his presence on the Senate floor.

To the man from Pekin, who dedicated his life to the service of his fellowman, it can be said... "Rest in peace. The good fight has been fought and you have won your place in the hearts of all Americans."

shelf has 50 books where before there were none.

"Most of the adult additions have been in non-fiction where the need is endless. The people expect their interests in non-fiction to be represented, and it is amazing how in a small town there can be such a cross section of concern. Requests have come for everything from vampires to soybeans, from corruption in Chicago to growing roses, from horse racing to castles in Bavaria. Fortunately what we can not supply we can borrow. Over 150 books have gone to Frankfort homes which were borrowed from all over the State.

"The children's section has also been expanded by over 1,000 books. It's easy to realize the need by the fast rate at which they are checked out. Indeed one statistic which indicates our accomplishment during the year is the fact that we now check out over 325 books a week compared to 150 a year ago.

"However, there is still more to a library than the facilities or the books. We offer to the people many special services. Over 75 children participated this summer in a reading program and story hour. Magazines and a pamphlet file are now in use. Framed art prints are available to be lent to patrons to enjoy in their own homes. Large print books and talking books are available for those blind or with sight difficulties. Audio-visual programs are planned for the next year.

"Yet the story of a public library is not told by the building, the books, or even the special programs. The most important element, and the only one which has remained unchanged during the year is the emphasis on serving the needs of the people. The number of books on hand is only important if we have the one you want. The billions of facts available are less meaningful than helping you to find the one you need. And thus our philosophy is one of meeting your need and the only important patron is the one who is standing at the desk.

"The future is well planned. Our immediate goals are to increase the number of hours open, and to expand our collection. With the help of an enthusiastic board of directors, organizations as the Frankfort Women's Club which has befriended us for many years, and of citizens who have donated books, time and ideas we will have a bright future."
